LUELLA KEYSER

- 47 Luella Keyser, born Febr. 14, 1870, died May 10, 1944; married William F. (Billy) Jones (born Mar. 27, 1863, in Otoe Co., NE

Luella Keyser was born in the little community of Percival, Iowa; February 14, 1870. She was the seventh child of William Preston and Malissa Jane Keyser.

In her early childhood, her family moved to a farm near Union, Nebraska, and there she grew into young womanhood. Even as a young girl, she said she was concerned with the inequalities of the human lot. Here were found poverty and frustration -- the war widows, the farmers who could not make a go of it, the newcomers who could scarcely get started. The air was filled with a sense of responsibility; moral responsibility, cultural, and perhaps social, too. Here she earnestly considered the purpose of life and the direction she wished to pursue. She worked consistently throughout her life to fulfill the goals she set for herself.

On November 2, 1885, she was married to William F. Jones. They established their home on a farm near Magnet, Nebraska. On January 10, 1887, their first son, Roy, (my father) was born. A daughter, Peal; Six sons: Robert, Guy, Roland, Harvey, and twins, Clifford and Clifton, were born, completing their family. She experienced many difficulties, but managed to keep on top of every situation. She was steadfast in her faith in God and confident that her best efforts would be rewarded.

The family left Nebraska in 1910 to homestead in Northwest South Dakota. My first recollections of Luella, (my grandmother) began during visits to the farm in 1915. I was about three years old. She was a trim woman, about 5'4" tall, with dark brown eyes, and a smooth, clear complexion. Her dark hair was combed up and coiled into a bun which she pinned to the back of her head. Wisps of hair pulled out, and damp with perspiration, made soft curls on her neck and framed her face. Luella was attractive even in her housedresses.

Luella had many talents but none more remarkable than her ability to work from the immediate to the general, from the practical problems to philosophy. She always began with the job at hand, no matter how elementary or undignified, to show how it could be done. She was perhaps the best organized person I have ever known.

She would get up a dawn, put on her flat sunbonnet, and go out to hoe in her garden while the air was still cool. She had a "Green Thumb" and her gardens, vegetable and flower, flourished. Hoeing finished, she would pick up her apron by the corners to form a container which she would fill with vegetables to use in the menu for the day. She would hurry back to the house to prepare breakfast for the men who had been milking and doing chores. (I could not believe the amounts of food they consumed.) After the meal was finished, the men went to work in the fields, and Luella would begin her day.

Her routine was consistent: She always did the laundry on Monday; ironed on Tuesday and did the mending; straightened the house and did light cleaning on Wednesday; Thursday she sewed and did anything else that needed doing. Friday was housecleaning day, and she did the baking for the weekend. The Jones's usually went to town on Saturday where the cream and eggs were exchanged for food and other items. There, the neighbors would get together to visit and exchange bits of news before returning home. Sunday was the day to rest, worship, entertain, or go visiting.

Billy and Luella sold the farm in 1921, and moved to Wessington Springs, South Dakota. Roland, Clifford and Clifton were still at home. Modern conveniences made life easier and allowed her more leisure time. She became active in church affairs, spent time with her children and their families, and visited her friends and relatives. She had time to crochet, piece quilts, make lace, etc. Her hands were always busy.

William and Luella traveled extensively from 1921 to 1934. They toured many of the United States and made side trips into Old Mexico, and parts of Canada. They moved to Artesian, South Dakota, in 1928. After the death of William in 1937, Luella returned to Wessington Springs, where she maintained an apartment until 1943, when failing health made it necessary for her to have special care. She found pleasure and contentment in the home of her son, Roy, and his wife until her life ended in 1944.

A period of seventy-four years past, during which Luella experienced many and varied emotions: Love with her husband and children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren; Grief when death claimed the lives of Harvey (14 months), and Clifford (11 years) and her husband after fifty-two years of marriage; Joy for life itself; and Gratitude for all her blessings and privileges. Her life was meaningful to her and to all who knew her. It is with a deep sense of affection and admiration that I recall these events in the life of Luella Keyser Jones.

(Reproduced here is a portion of a biography written by Eugene L. Keyser (No. 4921) about his grandfather, William W., in the late 1960s:)

It was the nose, I think, more than anything else that distinguished him. For a man near 90, he had a strong, well-defined nose. His hair was grey and thinning and his eyes peered hard through cataracts. He would have seemed like any other aging man if it weren't for the nose. It was the nose of some cabalistic leader, scrupulous and melodramatic. This was the nose of a robust, daring, unwielding character who was not pedestrian.

Sometimes I would see him walking with a cane, but with the briskness of youthful energy from his past. His backbone had curved at the shoulders. It was not the self-pitying slouch of a teenager but the character curve of a man who had lived nearly a century. He had lived the full incidental life of a man in search of a purpose. He was a man who had made the millions of mistakes of all other men yet was willing to give it another try at the risk of making another mistake.

That, after all, is why he lived. Born somewhere around Percival, Iowa, on or about the 8th of December, 1973, he came into the farm family of William Preston Keyser and his wife, Malissa Moore. It was a household of American kids, each determined to be independent. Bill (Will) Keyser as a boy left his parents and brothers Henry, Charlie, Mitchell, John, Frank, Rufus, and Albert; his sisters Mary, Luella, Effie, Iva, Emma, and Rosa, and went to Wyoming to make it on his own. From that time, till the time he died in 1966, Bill Keyser forged his way through life; hoping at each juncture he would find the honest way to live without suffering and without a struggle for himself and those he came to love.

He started out the man's way. At 16, he was a cowboy in the Indian territory of Nebraska and Wyoming. His brother, Mitch, was "the boss" man at home. Will thought there was too much "boss" and not enough "man." There was love there but also a compelling need for independence, in the fashion of the frontier man. So the prairie sea became his domain for adventure. His future, he knew, would be found on the ocean of prairie grass crested by rugged mountain peaks. It was the American promise of frontier and possibility.

Bill was six years old when in 1880 his father moved the family from Iowa to a homestead in Nebraska. When he was supposed to be in school, he was carrying a lunch into the pasture, watching the cattle. The work on the farm was long, but it strengthened his will to become a man.

Wild, boyish memories surround the farm in Nebraska. He was rash: One day, when he was home from the third grade, a hot, sweaty afternoon, he became angry at Mitch while they were shucking corn and he left for Oklahoma. The brown autumn sky and hot, grey days moved with him from farm to farm, where he worked for a few cents a day and food.

By 1889 he had come home again and worked with Mitch on the farm. But shortly Mitch left, too, and this time Will left with him. The pair worked together on farms in Nebraska. They worked for room and board until Will blew up one day. He didn't have any clothes to wear: "My ass and toes were sticking out," he said, so he left Mitch again to find some future in the west.

He went to a farmer near home and asked for a job driving a buck rake in the hay fields. Sixteen, skinny, with a strong, manly nose, he asked the farmer for $20 a month and room and board. "You're pretty small for $20. I'll give you $17." Working through the Fall, he was able to get enough money to buy some clothes. Feeling more like a man with some money in his pocket, he returned to Nebraska that winter to be with his brother, John. Until the next summer, he worked for $20 a month until he found himself taking care of the place alone.

"I took care of the place for the next several years. It was about 1897 that I bought some mules just before I came to Wyoming. A felle' had a sow and two pigs he wanted to sell me."

Since he was working on credit, he couldn't buy the pigs, and his mother wouldn't sign the note. To top it off, he had 1,200 bushels of wheat that sprouted and were wasted. He was sure that he went broke because of not getting the pigs, and he started a drinking spree that lasted two or three months.

"The next spring, I didn't farm," he reported cynically.

That same spring, he came to Wyoming and worked for Willis Spears and made an agreement to work for the Monkrief outfit by the first of March.

"On New Year's day of '98, I joined the Regular Army." The record isn't clear on this point. He said that his patriotic mind was charged by the blowing up of the Battleship Maine. McKinley asked for volunteers in May, so he joined to fulfill his obligation to country, family, and conscience.

His regiment was stationed at Fort Crook, Nebraska. After a couple of weeks of training, he felt there was something better for him to do.

"I had my clothes sold and was going to desert, but the war broke out."

His regiment was transported by two sections of train, and on June the 22nd of 1898, they landed in Cuba. The day they landed, he was thrown into the rigors of battle, and on the 23rd, they had captured an enemy flag.

On the 30th of June, they were making preparation to take El Canay. They had a late lunch, sitting in the mud and heat of a lush tropical island. By 4:00 p.m. they started their hike, which took them until 11:00 p.m. that night.

The order was given: "Don't unbuckle your belts or release your blanket rolls," and in a loud growl, "Sleep with your guns in your hand."

At 2:00 o'clock in the morning, they started hiking again. They were a number of the advance guard of the 22nd Infantry Company B of Cuba.

That morning they flanked to the left of El Canay, staying in battle formation until the "ball opened" at sun-up. They were hungry from the all night walk, but the nerves in their guts sustained a dry excitement. Some were trying to eat mangos when the firing started. They all hit the dirt, and he says, "They thought they had killed us all." The Captain ordered, "Advance by rushes!"

On their stomachs, they advanced 200 yards under seven wire fences, fighting their way through the bottom wires. Bill advanced another slow 100 yards, when an enemy soldier spotted him. Bill saw the movement as the soldier aimed to shoot, and rolled to the side to have dirt shot in his eyes. Vegetation was cut off by the enemy fire on all sides of him. He fought with his regiment until sundown, but they gained less than 200 yards. "We licked 'em. There were dead men like railroad ties!"

For two days the men languished in hunger. The tropical heat was decaying to their flesh. Will undertook the hardships of heat, mud, insects, and hunger as a man would take privation for his family. On the 2nd of July, they were met by a pack train. They drew rations and ammunition. This was their first food since they ate the mangos on the 30th of June.

Will was a scout for the division and marched all the next day to San Juan Hill. The next day at sun-up, his group reenforced a division that was skirting the foot of San Juan Hill. For two weeks, the fighting continued. The Battle of San Diego continued from the 3rd until the 17th of July. It was on the 17th that the enemy finally surrendered.

Will knew that honor was something someone worked for, without glory and without the thrill of victory, just fatigue and integrity.

After the victory, it was weary to live. The Spanish prisoners had to be guarded and fed. It was difficult just to look out for oneself. Living in a world of foreigners and men was a struggle in itself. There was none of the innocence of Iowa and Nebraska farm land, no security of the Wyoming mountain air.

But there was dirt. Insects, dirt, and disease. Will contracted dysentery and, he thought, malaria, late in the month of July. It was not until the first part of September that he was able to leave Cuba. His bowels were torn with infection and disease.

One pale August morning, he fought a fever and pain. At 7:00 o'clock in the morning he found he had staggered, in unconscious pain, over a mile to the company hospital. The medics gave him medicine to subdue the pain, and he returned to his regiment, only to learn that he needed orders from the regimental doctor to receive treatment. In near coma stage, he was carried by four men to a warehouse, where his brother, John, recognized him.

Will was stubborn. Had the doctor provided him with treatment earlier, he would have gone to the hospital, but with his brother, he was going to prove he could "take it like a man," and he refused to be returned to the hospital.

John took him to his camp, where Will stoically participated in a silent, solemn reunion. It was just as his regiment was leaving for the States that John returned him to his company in time to catch the ship. It was on the ship that Will finally asked for a doctor's attention. As he recalled, the "Doc" gave him 16 ozs. of castor oil and sent him to the hospital. Even though the dysentery had shredded all the meat from his bones, Will stood in ranks for inspection and was passed as the ship docked at Long Island.

Will lived with the rest of his regiment in tents on Long Island for three weeks before four train coaches returned them to Omaha. Seven men from B Company were all that returned to Fort Crook; Will was one of them. He rested and recuperated for three weeks, when there was a call for war strength troops. Will went to the Phillipines, and in January of 1899, he joined I Company, under the leadership of General Funston.

His orders from headquarters were to report for "Detached Duty," and he was assigned to General Funston's scouts. For 17 months, he lived an army life on the Phillipines and grew to respect the aristocratic leadership of General Funston. During the 17 months of duty, before his discharge, he was engaged in 18 scrimmages under the General. He learned to be proud in a way the clean earth never taught him in Nebraska.

His pride was in comradeship and respect, in trust and integrity. It was the pride of learning how to live in a world of men on a foreign soil and for the sake of history.

Will worked in Manila for a few months before he returned to San Francisco. After his discharge, he had some idea of living the life of an adventurer, but in March of 1901 he decided to return to the States.

In California, the sophisticated glamour of the big city captured him. It was an uncommon life with a clear future for an ambitious young man with a head on his shoulders. Although he didn't have much education, he thought hard work and a good, quick mind would make it possible for him to be successful. As a laborer, he lived in Oakland, where he became a carpenter's apprentice. He grew into the trade in California and lived the bountiful life of a bachelor. It magnetized and allured him. It wasn't as heroic, but did not have the toil of farming the land. He started as a carpenter's helper for $1.50 a day. By fall, he was drawing regular carpenter's wages at $2.75 a day. That fall, ambitious and idealistic, he built a 12-room house on contract.

Peachie Edith Nowdesha was born in Ukiah, California, July 6, 1876. She was living in Oakland about the time Bill was drawing full carpenter's wages. Young, pretty, and idealistic, she was taking a practical nurse's training course at St. Helena. One autumn day, she took a picnic basket to a community social, and the handsome auctioneer took special fancy to the neat, quiet girl and bought the basket himself. Bill Keyser met Peachie Nowdesha that day, and several months later, when she returned from school, they were married. The wedding took place in Allendale, California, on New Year's Day, 1903. Peachie's mother, sister, and her brothers attended.

William did carpenter work in California, Nebraska, Iowa, and South Dakota. He went to barber school about 1915 and became the barber at Battle Mountain Sanitarium in Hot Springs, South Dakota. He homesteaded in Campbell County, Wyoming, in 1918. After Earnest joined the Navy, and Willet left home, he sold out and moved back to Hot Springs, where he bought a rooming house and did barbering. Later, they moved to a farm near Edgemont, South Dakota, and still later to Keystone, South Dakota, where he raised chickens. The "Tiger Lode" is the name of a mineral claim he acquired while there; it is still in the family.

When they left South Dakota, they lived variously in the State Soldiers' home in Buffalo, Wyoming, in Sheridan, Wyoming, and with Zina in Buffalo, where Peachie died in 1957.

(Ed.) I cannot remember when Dad was not in poor health. He used to have very severe chills when he got tired—supposedly from the malaria he contracted in Cuba. His military record shows in a January-February

1899, report: "Absent sick at Fort Crook, Nebr. since Jan. 26, 1899."
 March-April to November-December, 1899: "Absent in U.S. since January 26, 1899."
 January-February 1900: "On detached service in Brigade Headquarters, San Isido, Philippine Islands since February 10, 1900.)
 November-December 1900: "Discharged December 31, 1900 at San Antonio, N. E. Philippine Islands of esp. of service."
 Rolls of patients Regular Army at U.S. General Hospital, Presidio, California, show him as follows:
 September-October 1899: "Sick in hospital since October 7, 1899. Disease contracted in line of duty."
 November-December 1899: "Returned to duty December 4, 1899."

William had his gall bladder removed in the V.A. hospital at Sheridan, Wyoming, in 1966. He never recovered from this operation and passed away November 16, 1966.

5 Leander Keyser (b. Aug. 5, 1838, d. Mar. 29, 1922) married Eliza Jane Accord (b. June 22, 1841, d. July 11, 1923) on Jan. 31, 1861.

LEANDER KEYSER

Leander was one of the brothers -- John Barrener the other -- who drove an ox cart to Denver in 1860. He raised his family north of Sidney, Iowa, and lies buried in the Tabor Cemetery.

Leander was one of the witnesses on Malissa Jane's application for pension. He certified that Malissa Jane was William Preston's wife, and that she had not married since William's death. His signature on that document reveals the situation common to all the Keyzers, especially of that generation: they were not educated. His signature is very difficult

John and his brother, Leander, joined an ox team caravan to Denver in 1860. Capitol Hill was worth $1.25 an acre at that time. While the boys were waiting for the caravan's departure for Iowa, they put up hay in the lowlands and sold it for $75 a ton. Soon after their return from Denver, John enlisted in the army. He raised his family in Fremont, County, Iowa, on a farm. After his wife passed away, he lived alternately with his daughter, Minnie and dear friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williamson in Denver. He and his wife are buried in Grandview Cemetery near Knox, Iowa, where the family lived.

- 7 Mary Emaline Keyser, (born Feb. 23, 1848, died 1889) Bandreu Co., MO; married Frank Davison

Mary Emaline is the only one of Henry's children who was not born in West Virginia. Her birthplace is near Savannah, Missouri. She bore fourteen children to Frank Davison. She and the fourteenth child died at the time of its birth. She was buried with the baby in her arms. This story was presented as a rumor on several occasions, but just as this is being readied for printing, Mabel Day relates that Lola Bebout told her the story. Lola lived all her life in Fremont County, and could very well have attended the funeral.

THE AUTHOR

Willet Keyser, great-grandson of Henry Keyser, grandson of Preston, and son of William W. Keyser, decided to work on the Keyser genealogy after his retirement from the foreign aid program of the U. S. Government in 1972. Unfortunately, this was after the death of his father and several other older relatives who could have been of much assistance to him on this project.

Collecting the information for this work has involved many miles of travel, as well as much correspondence. In some instances, it was very fruitful and many "new" relatives were discovered. There were also frustrations and blank walls.

Willet is a graduate of the University of Wyoming with both Bachelors and Masters degrees in Animal Production. He and his wife, Leota, spent fifteen years in Afghanistan and Pakistan before retiring on a small lake near Palestine in east Texas. Here they have built their tri-level house, which they now enjoy between trips to visit relatives and friends.
